Four Day Workshop in Carlsbad, CA

June 20 – 23, 2019

10am - 7pm each day

- The Journey Toward Joy • Emotional Attachment in Relationships
- Living in the Unified Field • Deeper Aspects of I.M.E.S.P. Dis-Ease

Thursday: THE JOURNEY TOWARD JOY

Perhaps you have noticed the zig-zag path toward the experience of joy? If part of our ego is attached to shame and fear of risking an open heart then could we find the parts of ego that benefit by creating suffering by separating self from joy? Participants will be invited to clearly define the experience of joy and discover the purpose of the zig-zag journey.

Friday: EMOTIONAL ATTACHMENT IN RELATIONSHIPS

What if we discover our greatest desire in relationship with self about others becomes our greatest challenge? Perhaps we learned the illusion of intimacy through a defended heart that creates control dramas and loss of the authentic self. Participants will discover the light and shadow consequences of an open mind and heart in relationships.

Saturday: LIVING IN THE UNIFIED FIELD

Many of us carry a great deal of stress and anxiety from the conflict created by our own ego perceptions. If we could witness how anxiety can be our friend or enemy through witnessing rather than participating, we can bring harmony to the holy trinity of mind, body, spirit.

Sunday: DEEPER ASPECTS OF I.M.E.S.P. DIS-EASE

Once we learn the paradox between blame and shame we can witness the illusion of this power and choose not to be seduced by the projections of self or others. The class will use liberating language for functional acceptance and compassion rather than dysfunctional hiding.
